

Understanding Alaska:

ISER Lunchtime Talks

A joint presentation of the Canadian Consulate and UAA's Institute of Social and Economic Research and University Advancement. Everyone is welcome to attend. Pizza and soft drinks will be served.

Canada, the United States, and the Arctic: A History of Cooperation and Prospects for the Future

WHITNEY LACKENBAUER

Associate Professor and Chair, Department of History,
St. Jerome's University, University of Waterloo, Ontario

Whitney Lackenbauer of the University of Waterloo in Ontario is one of Canada's leading historians and scholars on contemporary Arctic sovereignty and security issues. At ISER, Dr. Lackenbauer will talk about Canadian and American perceptions of the Arctic since the nineteenth century, focusing on why many Canadians have deep-seated concerns about American intentions in the North American Arctic. He will discuss why he thinks the bilateral relationship has been—and remains—based more on cooperation than on conflict, and he will suggest areas for and approaches to Canada-U.S. collaboration in the twenty-first century.

When: Tuesday, March 27, 12 to 1

Where: Conference Room, Third Floor, Diplomacy Building. Notice that this presentation is not in ISER's conference room but in the larger conference room on the third floor of the same building.

The Diplomacy Building is at 4500 Diplomacy Drive, at the corner of Tudor Road and Tudor Centre Drive. FREE PARKING. Call 786-7710 if you need directions.

Canada

The Canadian Consulate is sponsoring Dr. Lackenbauer's visit to UAA. To learn more about his entire schedule at UAA, visit: greenandgold.uaa.alaska.edu